2. MOPH emphasized that care of the undocumented Thai workers abroad is a display of cooperation from all sectors; 186 people were screened and there were no signs of fever.

The Ministry of Public Health (MOPH) emphasized that taking care of undocumented Thai workers has shown cooperation from all sectors. 186 people were screened and observed at Sattahip Naval Base. Currently, none of them have a fever but they are under observation.

Dr. Tanarak Plipat, Deputy Director General and his team stated about the COVID-19 situation today, that 16 COVID-19 confirmed cases still remain in the hospital, 33 cases have been discharged from the hospital and there has been one death. The total number of COVID-19 cases in Thailand is 50. There have been no additional confirmed cases. One severe case still remains at the Bamrasnaradura Infectious Diseases Institute, and laboratory results for the virus are now negative, but the patient is still under close observation.

There are 186 undocumented Thai workers from South Korea who were sent to the naval facility in Sattahip for quarantine - 88 men and 98 women. Of these, 18 people are in need of special care (pregnant women, children and patients with chronic illness) and 8 are among high-risk groups who have travel history to Daegu and/or North Gyeongsang province. All of them have gone through health checks and nobody had a fever. The Ministry of Public Health and the Royal Thai Navy have established health care centers providing temperature and symptom checks every day. The Office of Disease Prevention and Control, Region 6 has cooperated in this action. Staff are available 24 hours at the facility.

The measures to take care of the passengers departing from South Korea are under the responsibility of various sectors including the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, The Ministry of Transport, The Immigration Bureau, the Ministry of Interior, the Ministry of Defense, the Ministry of Labor and Social Development and the Ministry of Tourism and Sport. The aforementioned passengers are categorized into three groups, i.e. 1) International passengers, 2) Thai passengers, and 3) the group of Thai workers. When passengers arrive at the airport, landing and specific isolation areas have been arranged for those people. They will be screened and must pass the entry screening. If anyone has a fever, they will be brought to the hospital in accordance with the protocol. Among Thai workers, passengers holding an expired passport will be brought to the designated areas prepared by the government, while other Thai workers will be brought to the local quarantine areas
